Roosevelt's Action To Aid Democracy Told to Committee

Ready To Sell Planes for Cash, But Won't Back Them With Force; Paris Jubilant; German Nazis Voice Their Rage

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—President Roosevelt's account of French war plane purchases was described by members of the senate military committee today as a sign of American willingness to help European democracies arm against any totalitarian aggression.
As details of the President's unusual conference with the committee yesterday trickled out, his objective in expediting sale of American-made aircraft to France was disclosed to be preservation of world peace through strengthening of democracies.
He was said to have stressed to the senators, however, that any such help would be confined largely to selling planes for cash and under no circumstances would it involve backing of any European nation with force.
Speaks Plainly
With 18 members of the committee gathered in a circle around him, the President was reported to have spoken plainly on the foreign and domestic policies underlying the proffered aid to a French mission in obtaining planes from private manufacturers in this country.
The senators, who went away hungry after an hour's session at lunch time, said Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that sales of planes to foreign governments would provide employment and prepare this country for the mass production of aircraft called for in the defense program.
He then was said to have declared that the government considered it the wisest policy to aid European democracies to rearm so that they could balk threats of war by being prepared for any eventuality.
Criticism Still Exists
There were strong indications, however, that the President's explanation of the government's interest in the French mission had not stillled minority criticism of the plan.

"RIPPER" BILL PROGRAM FACES FIGHT BY LABOR

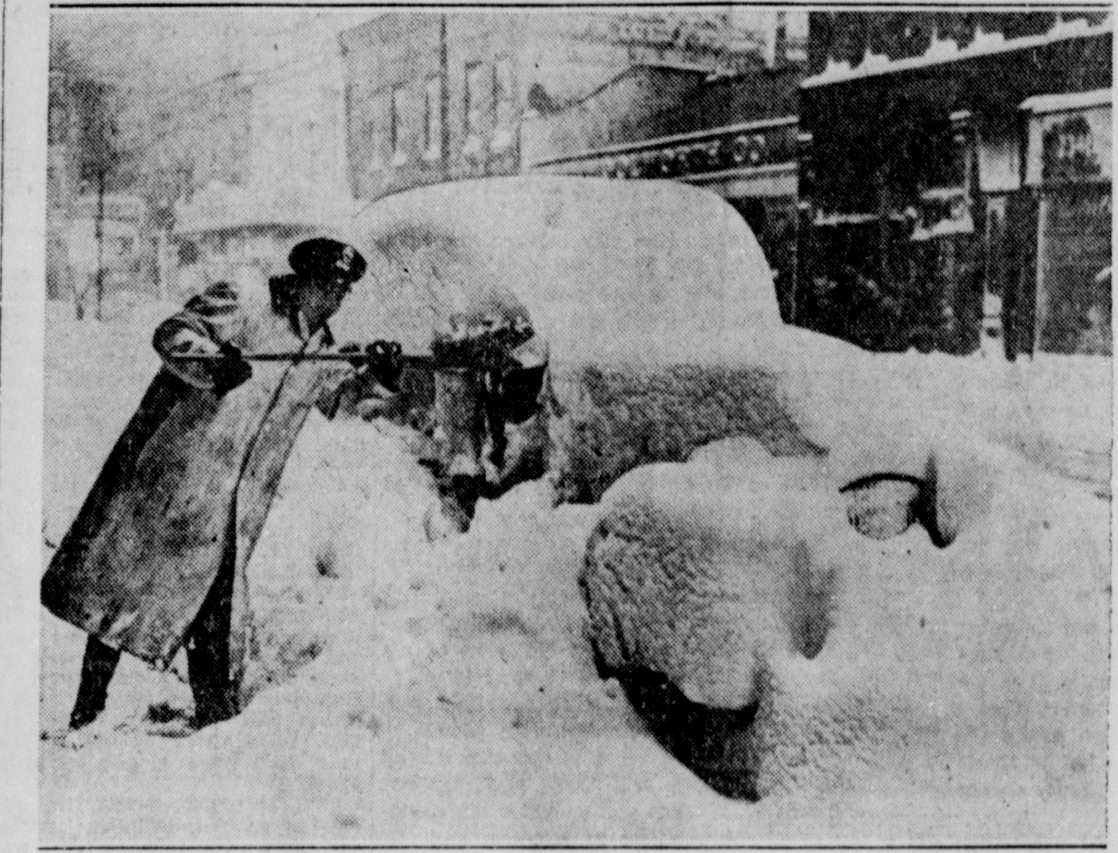

Unions Oppose Reorganization of Unemployment Commission

ACTION PUT OFF TO NEXT MONDAY

Senate Committee Recommends Temporary Relief Bill

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1.—The "ripper" program of the Bricker administration faced its first formidable opposition today as organized labor lined up against a bill to reorganize the unemployment insurance system.
Spokesmen for the Ohio Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen spiked a move of the Republican leadership to put the measure through the senate this week.
Postponed Until Monday
The senate commerce and labor committee postponed action on the bill until next Monday after the labor representatives described it as a political patronage device and as "fundamentally unsound."
Lieutenants of Gov. John W. Bricker held their own in another sector, however, as the senate taxation committee recommended the $5,000,000 temporary relief bill for passage in substantially the same form that it passed the house.
The senate was expected to vote on it today.
The committee not only retained the clause requiring the cities and counties to match state grants, dollar for dollar, but specified that they should finance January relief entirely with their present funds.
The state funds may be spent for relief only from the time the bill becomes effective until June 30.
None of the money may be used to pay deficits incurred earlier.
Chairman Lawrence A. Kane of the taxation committee said.
This leaves 12 counties "holding the bag" for relief deficits totaling $3,378,000 piled up last year, Kane said. City officials, who contend they do not have money even for matching, had hoped the state would help pay these deficits as it has done before.
Credit As Matching
The local governments were authorized, however, to credit as matching those local funds which they spent for relief in January.
The committee eliminated the matching requirement and then hastily restored it when Speaker William M. McCulloch declared it was extremely unlikely the house would approve deletion of the clause.
The committee failed to make provision for payment of $739,000 worth of relief notes issued last year against 1939 sales tax revenue.
In the senate commerce and labor committee hearing the only person who spoke for the unemployment insurance "ripper" bill was

Test Calls for Protection

The association, representing 95 per cent of the industry, heard Senator Taft (R., Ohio) say at a banquet last night that while there is "no panacea" for unemployment, one of the definite things that can be done is to protect our workmen in certain industries against a flood of importations from countries where the average wage is a small percentage of our wage.

The pottery industry is or should be one of the leading industries of Ohio. Today many of the plants are closed, and others operating on part time, for the simple reason that more than 50 per cent of the domestic markets, in tableware particularly, is served by foreign Eighty-four per cent of the imports come from Japan. Japan is 10 per cent of our markets, for the principal reason that workmen in Japan are paid 4 1/2 cents an hour, whereas the average wage of the American potter is 75 cents an hour.

In 1938 the Japanese imports of tableware decreased greatly, probably because of the war, but Czechoslovakian imports have tripled, and the new English treaty provides a 35 per cent tariff cut on earthenware, which will undoubtedly stimulate imports from a

County Relief Funds Gone, Sub-Division Heads Told

Tuesday's Allocation of $9,680 Exhausts "Treasury"; Legislature Action Is Awaited

LISBON, Feb. 1.—An allocation of $9,680 made Tuesday by county commissioners will exhaust available relief funds, sub-division heads were notified today.
The allocations were made on a 15-day basis and John Orr, county relief director, informed recipients no bills incurred after that date would be honored.
"This action," Orr's letter read, "is necessary due to the fact that the county's relief fund is being entirely depleted to make the current allocation. Unless otherwise advised before February 15, relief in your sub-division must be financed from your own funds."

Four Persons Die In Rooming House Fire In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1.—Fire of undetermined origin swept through the second floor of a frame rooming house of Cleveland's west side today, burning four persons to death and injuring two others seriously.
The dead were Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 23-year-old WPA seamstress; her two sons, Clate, 2, and Everett, 5; and an unidentified youth about 17.
Taken to a hospital with second degree burns were Benjamin H. Brand, 51, WPA worker, and Stephen Toth, 32.
The "sleeping rooms" were all taken last night, the proprietor, Mrs. Julia Fisher, said. She was unable to account for the presence of the dead youth who was not registered.
Brand suffered second degree burns in escorting his wife and two children to the roof from where they were rescued by firemen. Three others also escaped by making their way to the roof and two jumped to safety from second floor windows. The remaining eight occupants were sleeping on the first floor, firemen said.

State Distributes Aid for Dependents

The state division of public assistance placed in the mails at Columbus today checks totaling $139,333, representing the state's contribution to the aid to dependent children's program for January.
The allocation to Columbiana county amounted to $1,922; Mahoning county, $5,709, and Stark county, $4,756.
Henry J. Robison, chief of the division, said allocations were made according to the ratio of the number of persons under 16 years of age in each county to the state total. At present, he said, the program is providing for approximately 31,000 children otherwise deprived of family support.

Will Give Up Preaching To Make Marriage Success

Girl Evangelist Willing To Forsake Career, She Tells Court at Divorce Hearing

"Spreading the word of God certainly is not grounds for divorce," Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones told James Clutter, 23-year-old pottery worker, in court at Lisbon today.
Clutter was married June 26, 1937, to Mary Louise Pace, 20, of Uhrichsville. She has toured many states since she began preaching for the Pentecostal denomination eight years ago. They separated last October.
To Clutter's contention that her long tours deprived him of her companionship, and that she spent so much time preaching she couldn't maintain her home, Judge Lones ruled the husband knew when he married that his wife was a preacher.
He agreed with the husband, however, that "she apparently neglected her home for revivals."
The hearing ended when Mrs. Clutter said she would give up her evangelistic career and "try to make our marriage a success" if her husband would agree to a reconciliation. The judge expressed "hope you two can settle your differences."

Lives for Three Hours After Being Taken To Hospital

Mrs. Sue Felshaw, 67, of 221 N. Madison ave., died in Salem City hospital at 9:15 p. m. Tuesday, three hours after she was found burned at her home.

Mrs. Felshaw, who lived alone, apparently had fallen against a heating stove in the front room of her home when attempting to remove ashes and her clothing caught fire.

Charles Vincent of the Albany road, who was distributing bills for the Ohio Edison Co., smelled smoke as he walked up to the woman's home shortly after 6 o'clock, and, as he went to place the bill in the partially open doorway, he discovered Mrs. Felshaw sitting in a chair near the door.

Mrs. Felshaw, with her clothing burned completely from her body, feebly asked Vincent to tell one of the neighbor women to come over. He realized what had happened and summoned several of them.

Mrs. Felshaw, still conscious and uncomplaining, talked with the other women until an ambulance arrived. First and second degree burns covered two-thirds of her body, hospital attendants said.

Those who visited the house found evidence that she had fallen against the stove. Neighbors said Mrs. Felshaw was feeble and had a hard time getting about her home. Neither firemen nor police were notified, but Coroner Arnold Devon, who investigated, ruled accidental death.

Mrs. Felshaw, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clark, was born at Sayard in Columbiana county, Dec. 11, 1871. Her husband, Charles, died 25 years ago. They lived in Chicago at one time.

Mrs. Felshaw came to Salem from Cleveland, about 12 years ago, where she was head pastry maker at the University school for a number of years. She was a member of the Pentecostal church and the Lighthouse tabernacle.

She leaves four nieces, Mrs. Walter Berg, of Salem, Mrs. Ed Moore of Niles and Mrs. Marie Jackson and Mrs. Melvin Hess of Warren.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Arbaugh-Pearce funeral home in charge of Rev. M. R. Searles of the sacramento. Burial will be in Woodside cemetery, near Winona.

Friends may call at the funeral home Thursday night.

"ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY"

by E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

SYNOPSIS

World-shaking events are not far off when Matilda, Countess of Matresser, meets her handsome bachelor son and heir, Ronald, soon after one of his long and mysterious journeys abroad. He chides her gently for hiring foreign servants. Sir Ronald (Lord Matresser) has returned home for a rest.

CHAPTER II

Matresser threw himself into a battered easy chair before the fire in the gunroom, lit a cigarette and reflected for a moment. A few yards away from him was Humphreys, the head keeper, standing with hat in hand. It was obvious from a certain air of tension and from the man's solemn demeanor that the story which he had just finished concerned matters more serious than the mere arrangement of the day's sport.

"This seems a queer sort of business," Humphreys, his master observed. "Sit down while I ask you a few questions."

The man established himself on the extreme edge of a cane chair, dropped his hat into position by his side and mumbled half to himself while awaiting his master's interrogation.

"Such a thing has never happened before in my recollection. 'Tis a pity that we did leave off the barbed wire from the gates. 'Tis the wire that does more than anything else in the world to keep out trespassers."

"Was there any vehicle left lying about?" Matresser asked.

"None as I did see, milord."

"Not even a bicycle?"

"Not of any sort, milord. It seemed to me from a casual glance around like as though he was trying to reach the Great House by a short cut across the turnips by the side of Farmer Reynolds' covert. A vexing thing for him to do for we put a wire to a dozen coverts of birds in before sundown and there they would have rested for sure."

"Was he conscious when you found him?"

"His eyes were open and he mumbled 'summat,' the keeper acknowledged, 'but what it was I couldn't rightly say. Anyway, we put him in the game cart and took him along to the doctor's. There he be now for all I know."

"Sure he was not a poacher?"

"There's one thing I can tell 'ee sure, milord. That 'un never snared fowl nor beast in his life. His hands were as white as a lady's and his shoes were made of that and there patent leather that's only worn by the gentry. He weren't no poacher and he were a stranger to these parts. That I can tell 'ee for sure."

Matresser's fingers toyed with his small, closely fitted black mouseline.

"Yet you found this fellow lying in a field of wet roots with nothing in the world to show how he got here. Perhaps he was on his way to do a little burgling up here."

"He didn't look tough enough for any man's job to me," Humphreys pronounced.

Matresser rose to his feet.

"You had better look in at the doctor's tonight, Humphreys," he directed. "Ask him to step up and see me any time after half-past nine."

"Tonight, milord?"

"Yes, tonight. I should like to have his report. I never care about strangers hanging round the place."

The man touched his forehead.

"The Countess of Matresser greeted her only son with a welcoming smile as he entered the drawing-room. She was wearing a black dress designed by the Rue de la Paix couturiere whom she visited twice every season, the two rows of famous Matresser pearls her only ornament. She sat propped up by cushions in the center of a high-backed divan and it was underpinned that an invitation to sit by her side was a rarely accorded honor. She possessed the unusual distinction of having preserved her complexion as well as her figure, and Matresser's bow was one of genuine admiration.

"You are the most wonderful woman in the world," he declared. "I come home from my wanderings each time to find you younger."

She smiled gaily up at him.

"You will have to keep your enthusiasm in the future for another member of the family," she told him. "You have seen Ann?"

"Not yet."

"She will be the beauty of the family. Her picture in the academy by that Hungarian artist was the success of the season. Watch her now. She has just seen you."

He turned round. His younger sister was coming towards him, her arms outstretched, moving with the swift joyous speed of a young Atalanta.

"Ronald!" she cried. "At last!"

One swift glance of admiration and then a queer stoppage of all sensation. His eyes seemed to pass her, to be fastened upon the girl who had entered the room by her side but who was lingering now in the background. Of himself, Matresser used always to say that he had not a pictorially retentive mind, that reminiscences with him were always of a fragmentary type. Yet in those few seconds the world seemed to fall away. The stately, exquisitely proportioned room with its carved ceilings and mantelpieces seemed suddenly to dissolve into the mists. He was back again in the wilder spots of the world. The perfume of the night flowers was in his nostrils, the hubbub of strange voices speaking in a strange tongue sounding in his ears, a few minutes of half forgotten madness—and there were very few in the life of Ronald Matresser—stealing into his pulses.

"Am I a ghost, Ronnie?" his sister laughed, as she threw herself into his arms. "Why do you look through me?"

"Danger! That was what had been at the bottom of that sudden shock. A sense of danger mingled with the tinkling of music, the breathlessness, the tropical air, the sound of those faint shots in the distance and the nearer growl of an angry people. He laughed it all into the background as he embraced his sister.

"My dear Ann," he exclaimed. "I never dreamed that you were to become the beauty of the family."

"I'm not really," she laughed.

holding his arm tightly. "I am a whim, the result of one of those little tricks of dress or pose or something which a great artist catches up and immortalizes. I told myself that it is not I whom he has painted. He has immortalized one of his own fancies and chosen me as the medium. It is very rude of him to say so and it is awfully hard to live up to."

The girl in white was standing now only a few feet away. She was tall but not too tall, her complexion was pale but might more adequately be described as creamy, and her hair was either a very pleasant shade of light brown or golden according to the lights that played upon it. Her eyes, which at that moment were looking searchingly into his, were a curious shade of hazel—soft and promising.

"I was so excited seeing you again I quite forgot," Ann apologized. "This is my brother, Lord Matresser—Mademoiselle Stamler."

Matresser was himself again—the same kindly, half cynical smile upon his lips, the same air of a man who has traveled far ahead of his years looking back down the too familiar avenues of time.

"I am very happy to welcome my sister's friend."

"It has been arranged," his mother confided, "that Mademoiselle Stamler is to be Ann's companion for a time. It was very fortunate that she was able to come to us."

Ballot-Tampering Charge Is Placed Against Official

HAMILTON, Feb. 1.—Henry Kessling, 45, precinct judge and recently an appraiser for the Home Owners Loan Corporation here, was indicted by the Butler county grand jury today on a charge of ballot-tampering in connection with defeat of a school bond issue in the November election.

Prosecutor Paul A. Paden said Kessling confessed, explaining he erased "yes" markings on ballots and changed them to "no" because he "didn't want to see higher taxes and had 'seen so many foreclosures as an HOLC worker.'"

The proposed two mill levy was designed to raise $126,000 for school operations. The Hamilton Classroom Teachers' association demanded a recount of ballots in 15 of the city's 84 precincts.

The grand jury also returned one first-degree murder indictment against three youths in the fatal shooting three weeks ago of Marshal William Simpson of nearby New Miami.

The indictment named John Frazee, Hiram York and Arthur Meyers, each 19, and charged them with the slaying "during perpetration of a burglary in a New Miami cafe."

Simpson was shot when he and Marshal Andrew Cain surprised the trio at work.

Cold Statistics

CHICAGO — Chicago's Monday snowfall put some statistically-minded persons to work and the results were gigantic and almost incredible.

All the snow which fell on the 202 square miles of the city (14.9 inches) piled on an area the size of the loop (156 acres) would make a pyramid 3,210 feet high.

If the 269,146,092 cubic yards of snow covering the city were put on the scales they would register 22,677,418 tons.

Theatre Attractions

Boris Karloff as he appears in "Devil's Island," showing at the State theater Thursday only.

Boris Karloff, known as a fine dramatic actor in his native England, who has had practically no chance at anything but horror roles in American films, is given a truly dramatic part in "Devil's Island" which shows Thursday only at the State theater.

The film depicts a system of penology so brutal and heartless that it can be compared to the earlier film "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

Background Authentic
The story told in "Devil's Island" is fictional, but the background of the film is authentic to the last degree.

Karloff is presented as a highly respected surgeon who is himself convicted of treason because he has treated the wounds of a convicted traitor who has escaped from the authorities. Sentenced to Devil's Island, he suffers through soul-harrowing experiences, tries unsuccessfully to escape, and is about to have his life ended by the guillotine when he is saved by the intervention of the new minister of justice, who has arrived on the island to investigate the tales of shocking brutalities which have finally percolated through to the home government. Because the surgeon has performed a delicate operation to save the life of her daughter, the commandant's wife, played by Nedda Harrigan, first tries to aid him in escaping and later attempts to save him from execution. Miss Harrigan and Rolla Gourvitch, the little girl who plays her daughter, are the only exceptions to an otherwise all-male cast.

Besides Karloff, the cast also includes James Stephenson, Ada Kuznetsoff, Will Stanton, Robert Warwick, Pedro de Cordoba, Tom Wilson, Stuart Holmes, Leonard Mudie, Egon Brecher and Frank Fletcher.

Going Places. with Dick Powell, Anita Louise, Allen Jenkins, Harold Huber, Walter Catlett, Louis Armstrong and Maxine Sullivan, concludes tonight.

Continuing out in front, the Streaks scored six points to Reisman's two in the third period to increase their lead to 19 to 14 at the close of this frame.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Various Spots

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The hold-out season officially opens today, but where are they? . . . The crop is scarcer than Grade A, B or C opponents for Joe Louis. . . Ever since Lou Gehrig crossed everybody up by holding forth instead of out, the boys have been beating the ground hog to it by scampering back into their holes on the double. . . Joe E. Rupp and Van Mungo are sticking around, but they're hollered 'wolt' so often nobody bothers to raise the window to see what the noise is about.

Eddie Mead hits town tomorrow and you can look for an Armstrong-Montanez or Armstrong-Ambers announcement any time thereafter. . . add sheelings: The one Don Meade Legion took at Hialeah Monday. . . Six losers in six races put the ace jack one up on Tommy Farr. . . Some of the Middlewestern schools wish Long Island U. of crack basketball team would tour out that way just to see what would happen.

Tiger Jack Fox is having weight trouble. . . Tulane is trying for a home and home series with Southern California.

Ouch dept.: A Big Ten cage coach was having trouble getting a prize prospect past the academic department. . . A research paper on which a great deal would depend was required of the candidate. . . the coach promptly got the kid a finished paper, but instead of copying it in his own handwriting, the youngster handed it in as was. . . the pay-off came when the prof. a bit doubtful of the handwriting, asked the boy the topic of the paper. . . you guessed it, the boy did not know and the teacher pressed the button which summoned the bouncer.

Mike Jacobs, who usually can spot a bit of a hitter for around the corner, is kicking himself because he turned down a fourth in "Hella-poppin'" for $20,000. . . the show is only the No. 1 Broadway hit. . . a Los Angeles sports writer who drove Max Baer to his Hollywood hotel, says there are some pretty good looking wrens around the lobby, but Max did not even look at 'em. . . arriving in the film capital, Max said: "They tell me Hollywood is full of hams already, so I don't see how my coming here could make the situation much worse."

Smith's Creamery chalked up its seventh victory in nine games in the other Class B fray, trouncing Demings, 37 to 22. Beck and Nan scored 11 and nine points, respectively, to star for the Creamery team.

More Than $400,000 to Be Given In Prizes During 1939 Races

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1.—America's motorcycle riders will race around dirt tracks and speedways, up hills and down highways this year in the quest of $400,000 in prizes, the greatest total award ever offered by the American Motorcycle Association's sanctioned meets.

E. C. Smith, secretary of the association, said about $425,000 was distributed to winners of 1,142 sanctioned events during 1938, but that this year's records would eclipse all others. Entry lists for the 1938 contests, Smith said, showed 33,000 contestants, indicating that practically all of the association's 17,500 members took part in one or more events.

Last year's races attracted 4,618,000 spectators, an increase of 22 per cent over 1937, the previous record season. The contestant figure, Smith said, was up 28 per cent in 1938 for another new high.

"There are approximately 125,000 motorcycle riders in the country," the secretary said, "but our sanctioned events are limited to the members of our association. About $35,000 will be distributed to the leaders in our 12 national championships, and we expect to have close to 1,200 other sanctioned contests which will boost the prize money to around a half million."

Smith said most of the cycles used in the Class A events cost in the neighborhood of $1,500, and that most of them were special "jobs" rigged up with new gadgets which the motorcycle industry desires to test right before placing on regular production machines.

"Our races and hill climbs," said Smith, "are the proving grounds for all the innovations. Naturally there is danger, and plenty of it, in our races, but the fact that more than 4,000,000 paid to see the events in 1938 proves that the American public likes its thrills."

Dies Tonight For Slaying Officer

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1.—Gov. John W. Bricker announced today that he would not intervene in the scheduled electrocution at Ohio penitentiary tonight of John W. Cline of West Elkton, convicted of slaying Patrolman Aaron Laubach of Hamilton on Jan. 27, 1938.
Bricker said he acted upon the recommendation of a clemency board which held after a hearing that there were no grounds for intervention. Counsel for Cline had sought commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.
Laubach was shot to death during an attempted filling station holdup.

COUNTY RELIEF FUNDS USED UP

Tuesday Allocation Exhausts Treasury, Director Says

tioners association were expected to secure data relative to the situation here. They will return Saturday.

Relief allocations in the county have been made for the past several months from the sale of $109,800 in notes issued in anticipation of 1939 collections of public utilities excise tax. Officials were hopeful that a sufficient balance would remain from anticipated settlements to allow them enough to match state grants, if the state relief measure takes that form.

Relief Load Jumps

The county's relief load jumped 178 cases, according to the estimate on which the current allotments were made. The total for the county was 1,371 cases and 3,872 individuals, comparable with 1,195 cases and 3,425 individuals for January. Case loads are figured on a census taken generally after the 15th of the preceding month.

East Liverpool's grant was $3,087.50, based on a case load of 480 and 1,235 individuals. Salem received $622.50 on a case load of 89 and 249 individuals. Wellsville's grant was $587.50; 86 cases and 235 individuals. East Palestine was allotted $605 on 67 cases and 242 individuals.

Township grants included: Liverpool $550; St. Clair, $522.50; Middleton, $265; Unity, $215; Yellow Creek, $212; Madison, $312; Elkrun, $87.50; Fairfield, $247.50; Washington, $317.50.
Wayne, $7.50; Center, $442.50; Salem, $745; Franklin, $45; Hanover, $190; Butler, $87.50; Perry, $115; Knox $195; West, $150.

Clergymen, Church Women Hold Joint Session Tuesday

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1.—A discussion of interarea problems occupied clergymen and church women attending the annual Ohio Pastors' convention and conference of church women today. High-lighting the program was a luncheon with Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard university, Washington, speaking.

Meeting in joint session, the groups last night heard Dr. Bernard Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist church of Pittsburgh, declare that "democracy cannot be saved in a day" and that he believed "we shall live to see our sons killed in war." He said that there was a "great need for people willing to be hurt, to sacrifice to attain the ends of democracy."
Frank G. Hoover of Canton was elected president for the third consecutive year of the Ohio Council of Churches, which sponsors the convention.

the move within the committee. This criticism took the form of protests against the secrecy which has cloaked committee investigation of the matter as well as the White House conference. One senator said he was considering walking out of further closed sessions, if the record of previous ones was not made public.

"To be sworn to secrecy at a time when there is much to be said is more distressing than you can know," Senator Nye (R-ND) told reporters after the White House meeting.

The President explained at the conference, committee members said, that his instructions to the treasury and other departments to send a French air mission had been sent in the form of a memorandum.

number of other countries." Pottery Industry Needs Help
Taft said he did not suggest general tariff increases or abandonment of reciprocal trade agreements, but "it seems to me there are some obvious places where we can apply the old home remedy of a protective tariff, and the pottery industry is one of them."

"The traditional Republican policy is a tariff equal to the difference in cost of production abroad and in the United States," Taft said. "No one has openly attacked the soundness of that policy, however difficult it is to apply it in particular cases, and it ought to be applied today."

"Whether or not we continue the reciprocal trade treaty policy, we should not permit any tariff on products whose production in the United States is established and substantial, to be reduced by any treaty below the difference in cost of production here and abroad."

"In the pottery industry, where a proper tariff policy can put many men back to work, men who are expert in their lines, men who are not in a position to be moved into any other industry, it seems evident that the tariff should be increased, even if it tends to reduce the total export from this country."

"Why should we throw men out of work in eastern Ohio in order that production of some exportable product in some other part of the country may be stimulated? Foreign exports at the present moment are a shaky source of prosperity in any event. We cannot hope long to hold substantial foreign markets in manufactured goods when every gov-
